

December Newsletter

Dear Parents,

During this month we have been working in Theme with South America, the children have enjoyed the center activities and have been learning about the different countries and their characteristics. On Friday November, 27th we had a special visitor named Pia Rodriguez {Tadeo's mom} come in and talk about her experience living in Argentina. She brought a power point presentation and artifacts from the country. She also shared fun facts and their traditions with the kids. If any of you have any stories or anecdotes that you would like to share about South America feel free to send a note so that it can be organized.

In writing we have begun teaching dialogue and some of the children are beginning to use them in their stories. We are currently working on our new stories for writing workshop, and I can say that they are coming out great.

We just started working with decimals and fractions in math. They are starting to understand but for others it has been a bit difficult to understand, this subject seems to be a bit abstract for them, but with dedication and practice we are confident that they will understand.

So as you know we are close to the end of the year. So no matter how you celebrate your holiday season we would like to wish you a happy and healthy one.
